- ✓ The assessment provides your company with a clear overview of the key workplace environment challenges affecting your production staff.
- ✓ Both managers and employees receive professional guidance and sparring on how to optimize workstations and workflows.
- ✓ You will receive a comprehensive report that, together with injury records and other relevant data, offers valuable insights into employee health and well-being.
- ✓ Based on the findings, you will also receive tailored recommendations addressing both overarching issues and local challenges.

1. Workstation Assessment

How it works

- ✓ A physiotherapist from Dansk Sundhedssikring, specializing in physical work environments, will visit your location to identify workplace challenges and uncover opportunities for improvement.
- ✓ The physiotherapist observes work processes and engages with both managers and employees. Backed by a strong in-house advisory team, the physiotherapist can guide you toward creating a healthier and safer workplace.
- ✓ Your specific needs are assessed, and factors such as heavy lifting, pushing and pulling, repetitive tasks, use of equipment, machinery, and many other parameters are mapped and evaluated.
- ✓ The physiotherapist also ensures a smooth and efficient planning process for the assessment.

2. Care call for Hourly Employees

Support for Helping Employees Return to Work

At Dansk Sundhedssikring, we are committed to supporting and caring for employees – before, during, and after a period of illness.

Employees who have been on sick leave for more than two weeks are offered personalized guidance and support to help them manage their situation. We call this a care call.

During a care call, a healthcare advisor contacts the employee to provide support and guidance, ensuring that the right help is made available.

Knowing that support is available in a challenging situation often brings peace of mind and reassurance.
